

I've had the good fortune of working with Dave Butler and the Vector Group on multiple occasions and find his leadership training sessions to be highly effective. Most recently, we engaged with the Vector Group to work with our entire leadership group – more than 200 supervisors, managers, and directors – over the course of several weeks. Each session, the feedback I received was consistent and telling: Dave Butler was just what Endeavor Air's leadership needed to get our messaging on track.

Dave's story is inspiring and motivational, but he is far from a motivational speaker. He walks his walk, and talks his talk, and I can say, without question, that our leaders are better because of the time they spent with The Vector Group.

The best compliment I can pay to Dave and his team is that we plan to engage with him again in the near future.
